Illustrations

For a variety of reasons, we cannot publish exact rates. However, the guide below will give you a good idea of what you can expect to pay per illustration.

$135 – $194	Monotone or simple (spot/line) illustrations
$195 – $280	Full color
$281 – $330	Intricate/detailed

Picture Books

A typical picture book has between 12 and 28 illustrations. The exact number of illustrations needed for a book is usually determined by the author/publisher and the book designer (which can be me since I have an extensive background in graphic design).

The rate categories above are for a single-page illustration. Double-page illustrations (also called 'spreads') are 50% more. Spreads can be a handy way to cut your illustration costs without appearing like you cut corners.

When illustrating for books, it is very important to use a contract. The contract establishes and protects your rights to the illustrations. Click to view a sample contract.
